ago. Bona-fide amateurs, if there are any, competed. They did not compete with professionals, but among themselves.

"They were afterwards protested because they had taken part in games where an entrance fee was charged."

THE RECEIPTS ESTIMATED AT $30,000. Although the receipts have not yet been completely made up and audited, it is possible to calculate pretty closely from careful estimates of the attendance and the proceeds of the previous sale of reserved seats and entrance privileges, what the total receipts of yesterday's game were.

This figure is in the neighborhood of $30,000 and upon this basis, according to the division of the proceeds previously agreed upon between the Manhattan Athletic Club and the Yale and Princeton football managers, there will be paid over to each of the college associations something more than $10,000.

All the reserved seats and boxes both on the grand stand, and on stands, as well as the change seats, were sold more than a week before the game. The premiums paid at the auction sales held at the Manhattan Athletic Club, all go into the general fund, and are subject to the final division of the spot.

HIGH PREMIUMS PAID FOR SEATS.

From the sale of the thirty boxes in the grand stand the sum of $10,000 was realized, and from the other reserved seats in the grand stand, with premiums, the additional sum of $14,000.

The carriage and coach seats brought in $1,500, and the 9,000 reserved seats on stand D, which adjoined the Grand Stand, were sold at $1.50 each, realizing $13,500.

During the last week 15,000 admission tickets at $1 each were put on sale at the Manhattan Athletic Club, and at New Haven and Princeton corresponding to the seating capacity of the three remaining open stands, on the east, north and west sides of the field.

Besides this were the large number of admission tickets sold at the gates yesterday, which secured for the purchaser standing room in the promenade around the inclosure or seats on the free stands, as he desired, providing he came to the grounds early enough to capture a place on the stand, and the admissions to the bluff overlooking the field from the west, which were sold at 50 cents each.

NOT MUCH OF A CROWD ON THE BLUFF.

It was estimated previous to the game that at least 20,000 people could be crowded into the enclosed stand, and the receipts of the game, including the field, and that 25,000 more might be accommodated upon the rocky bluff.

These estimates may have been sufficiently correct, but nothing like that number of persons availed themselves of either place. The number of those who watched the game from the lower railings could not have exceeded 1,000, for only those in the first two tiers could see anything of the play, and from that position, and the larger part of the space between the railing and the stands was unoccupied.

On the bluff instead of 25,000 spectators there were barely twenty-five hundred, and that from standing room places the management of the college association received a profit of hardly more than $5,000.

FIGHTERS UPON WHICH THE ESTIMATE IS BASED.

The items going to make up the total source of revenue from the game were therefore as follows:

Grand stand boxes.....	$ 3,000
Carriage and coach seats.....	1,500
Reserved seats on stand D.....	13,500
Other open stands.....	15,000
Admissions to the bluff.....	1,250
Total.....	$30,250

If this is divided equally between the Manhattan Athletic Club and the Yale and Princeton Football Associations each will receive nearly $15,000. This is about $5,000 more than was ever before netted by the rival college associations in a Thanksgiving Day game.

The largest receipts previously obtained were realized from the game on last Thanksgiving Day, at Eastern Park, when each of the colleges came in for about $12,000 of the net proceeds.

HOW THE PROCEEDS ARE TO BE DIVIDED.

According to Capt. Cornell of the Manhattan Athletic Club, the arrangement with the colleges was that each should receive one-third of the gross receipts, and that out of its share the Manhattan Club itself would stand all the expenses of the game. These included the preparation of the grounds and the erection of four additional stands, the labor of superintending the printing and sale of tickets, advertising, handling of the money, and the care of the crowd on the day of the game.

What this will amount to the officers of the club say they are not yet able to state definitely, but it is estimated that the expense will foot up several thousand dollars.

When Secretary Hughes was asked yesterday afternoon what the gross receipts would be he said that he did not think they would exceed $45,000.

"This is only based on an estimate that was made before the game began," he said, "when we calculated that about 30,000 people were on the field."

"I do not attempt to make any definite statement for the figures cannot be known until all the returns have been made and the money counted. I think that it will not be possible to make a complete statement before Saturday evening, when we expect to have the accounts all made up."

WHAT A YALE MAN SAYS.

Efforts were made to find some of the managers of the Yale football association after the game, but they had all vanished, and to hunt up any of them in the hordes of students who roamed about the town last night would have been like searching for a needle in a haystack.

A prominent representative of the Yale football interests said last night at the Fifth Avenue Hotel that while he had no definite information as to the exact proportion in which the proceeds were to be divided, he understood that the college associations would get four-fifths and the Manhattan Athletic Club one-fifth of the net receipts, after deducting the necessary expenses of the game.

"However, I may be mistaken," he added, "I suppose the matter will be fixed up satisfactorily at any rate. All we know is that we will probably receive a great deal more from this game than any which has ever been paid to the college associations in these parts."

"We depend a great deal on these Thanksgiving Day games to fill up our treasury, and the money that will be paid in on these occasions goes to support all branches of athletic at the University."

As for the college associations, they are set up on the proceeds of the Thanksgiving Day game with the intent to use the money to be the financial backbone of the association in the country.

HARDLY ANY THEY'RE PROFESSIONAL.

William E. Harding, of the Police Gazette, says: "An amateur athlete is one who does not enter into public or private competition for a stake, audience money, or entrance fee."

"I never considered the Yale and Princeton football players as amateurs anyway. They play for honor and the money that can be made out of the game, and by so doing make themselves professionals."

Their Victim Cut Down Before the Rope Had Done Fatal Work.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

LONDON, Nov. 27.—There was much excitement at the Horse Guards to-day upon the receipt of intelligence from Aldershot, where is situated a great military camp and barracks, that a spirit of murderous insubordination was prevalent in one of the regiments stationed at that place.

It appears that a corporal of the Second Battalion of the Prince of Wales's Leinster Regiment (Royal Canadians), which battalion is at present doing duty at Aldershot, had by his petty tyrannies rendered himself an object of peculiar aversion to the men.

Complaints were made in the usual military form against the obnoxious corporal, but they seemed to have no effect.

Finally the men became convinced that they would find no relief by complaining, and determined to redress themselves of the corporal.

As the corporal was going his rounds he was seized by the men. He attempted to call for assistance, but his cries were speedily silenced by a gag.

He was then informed of the fate in store for him, and despite his struggles was dragged without ceremony to a convenient spot.

Here a noose was thrown around his neck, and his hands were suspended in the air. The free end of the rope was made fast and the self-appointed executioners commenced.

The corporal was discovered and cut down before the rope had done fatal work.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—When the Archbishop of Aix was convicted of insulting M. Fallieres, Minister of Justice and Public Worship, and fined 3,000 francs, the newspaper, the Figaro, opened a public subscription and raised the amount necessary to pay the fine.

The government did not approve of this action, holding that it was a violation of the Press law, which forbids the opening of subscriptions to pay legal costs. A citation was, therefore, served upon the editor and he will be prosecuted.

HANGED A CORPORAL.

Murderous Act of Discontented British Horse Guards.

They String Up a Detested Petty Officer at Aldershot.

Their Victim Cut Down Before the Rope Had Done Fatal Work.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

LONDON, Nov. 27.—There was much excitement at the Horse Guards to-day upon the receipt of intelligence from Aldershot, where is situated a great military camp and barracks, that a spirit of murderous insubordination was prevalent in one of the regiments stationed at that place.

It appears that a corporal of the Second Battalion of the Prince of Wales's Leinster Regiment (Royal Canadians), which battalion is at present doing duty at Aldershot, had by his petty tyrannies rendered himself an object of peculiar aversion to the men.

Complaints were made in the usual military form against the obnoxious corporal, but they seemed to have no effect.

Finally the men became convinced that they would find no relief by complaining, and determined to redress themselves of the corporal.

As the corporal was going his rounds he was seized by the men. He attempted to call for assistance, but his cries were speedily silenced by a gag.

He was then informed of the fate in store for him, and despite his struggles was dragged without ceremony to a convenient spot.

Here a noose was thrown around his neck, and his hands were suspended in the air. The free end of the rope was made fast and the self-appointed executioners commenced.

The corporal was discovered and cut down before the rope had done fatal work.

M'GLORY'S HOME BURNED.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

ROCKVILLE CENTRAL, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Billy McGlory's house at Baldwin's was burned to the ground this morning.

There are circumstances surrounding the destruction of the ex-Hester street driver's country home which will cause a thorough investigation to be made by the Home Insurance Company, in which it was insured.

The fire broke out about 5 o'clock in the room of the hired man, who claims to have had $300 in his trunk.

There was no one at home when the fire was discovered.

Mr. Rauh Compromises Miss Witte's Breach of Promise Suit.

It is announced to-day that there will be no trial of the suit for $10,000 for breach of promise of marriage brought by Miss Gertrude Witte, of 30 St. Mark's place, against Stekler Brothers, her counsel, against Adolph Rauh, of 312 East Forty-ninth street.

The young lady is well known in German-speaking society circles and is very pretty. Rauh, a handsome young man, was a member of the New York Turnverein. The couple became engaged a few months ago, and gave a betrothal reception at the Waldorf. Miss Witte says, Rauh broke the engagement, and she brought the suit. The case was marked "settled" on the Court calendar.
